BURLINGTON HIGH WON.

Defeated Stowe High School, 42 to 21, at Burlington.

Burlington, Feb. 5.—Stowe high school got the small end of a 42 to 21 score in a fairly fast basketball game played on the Y. M. C. A. floor last evening. The game was somewhat marred by a rather large number of fouls. Bregstein netted 10 for Burlington high school and Heath caged three for Stowe.

The game started with a rush, "Midget" Blodgett putting away the first basket for Burlington in the first minute, and Houston followed directly for Stowe. Heath then caged a long shot with one hand and the points collected quickly until the game was interrupted by an injury to Heath, Stowe's star forward, which occurred frequently all through the game. At the end of the first half, the score stood 17 to 13 for Burlington high school.

The second half started with a basket by Blodgett in the first few seconds of play. Heath followed up with one for Stowe in a second or two. The half was a walkover for Burlington, and Stowe's baskets were few and far between. Bregstein and H. Rupert followed each other at close intervals with baskets and fouls. Katz was substituted for Smith at left guard near the end of the half and did well. The summary:

Burlington. Stowe.
H. Rupert, rg.....lg, Clayton
Blodgett, lf.....rg, Smalley
Bregstein, c.....c, Chaffee
R. Rupert, rg.....lf, Heath
Smith, lg.....rf, Houston

Lumbering operations in surrounding towns are again reported to be a standstill, this time because of a lack of snow for the drawing of the logs. Not long ago lumbermen were complaining that their work was handicapped by too much snow but the long spell of thawing weather has entirely reversed the conditions.

An effort is being made at city hall to clean up as many delinquent tax accounts as possible before the board of civil authority holds its annual election meetings around Feb. 20. Voters who are delinquent should bear in mind the fact that they are not entitled to the franchise unless they have a clean bill from the collector or city treasurer.

Among the visitors in the city yesterday and to-day were the following people: Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Thompson of Boston, B. L. Bogle of White River Junction, J. J. Kennedy of Burlington, G. A. Arthur A. Stetson, a farmer living at 14 Charles street, was placed under arrest yesterday by Chief Sinclair on a complaint made to Grand Juror William Wisbart charging him with cruelty to dumb beasts. It is alleged by the humane authorities that Stetson was the owner of an emaciated horse found in a barn on Charles street Wednesday and that he also owns three cows that appeared to be suffering from hunger and thirst.

Stetson returned to the city Wednesday night and during a part of his absence of three days the cows were fed by the authorities. The horse was ordered killed. Stetson was due to appear in city court to-day, but this morning his attorney asked for a continuance on the ground that the respondent was too ill to come to court. The request was granted.

Barre poultrymen, members of the Vermont poultry association, have filed to say on the action of Montpelier poultry breeders in meeting for the purpose of forming a separate organization. In fact, it is stated that the moving spirits in the state association have little to fear from any action that may be taken by breeders in the capital, inasmuch as the percentage of members living in the capital is very small and the number of birds usually exhibited at the annual show from Montpelier forms only a relatively small fraction of the total enrollment. Montpelier members of the state association and other breeders in that city are said to be dissatisfied with the decision of the association at its recent meeting to hold the 1916 show in Barre. The annual meeting was held last week and on that occasion capital city members put in a strong bid to have the show in Montpelier this year. It developed, however, that three-fourths of the birds shown in 1915 were Barre birds and that many of the birds in the remaining quarter did not come from Montpelier. Moreover, the Barre breeders say, the show was held in Montpelier four successive years, the 1915 show being the first to be held in this city since 1910.

The district meeting of the Royal Arch Masons of the third capital Masonic district of Vermont will be held in the lodge rooms of Granite chapter, No. 26, R. A. M., Tuesday afternoon and evening, Feb. 8. The meetings open at 3:30, to be followed by a supper at 6:30. Admission to supper, 50c. E. George I. Whitney, grand lecturer, will talk at the meeting which opens at 7:45. It is to be hoped that a large number will attend all meetings. Per order Wilbur D. Mower, E. H. P.

Acting on advice received from the respondent's counsel, a jury was not drawn Friday afternoon in the case of State vs. Joseph Bennett, charged with furnishing liquor illegally, but this morning, E. R. Thomas, a Montpelier attorney, representing Bennett's counsel, R. A. Hoar, by proxy, appeared before Magistrate H. W. Scott and asked for a jury. With the acquiescence of Grand Juror William Wisbart, who is to conduct the prosecution, a jury was drawn and Constable George L. Morris was instructed to summon the jurors for 10 o'clock Monday forenoon. Bennett and one of the principal witnesses for the state had been brought to Barre from the county jail with the expectation that they would testify in a hearing set for to-day. They were remanded to jail.

SPEAKER ANSWERED QUERIES

After Delivering Lecture on "Peace and War" at Barre Opera House.

Under the auspices of Barre council, No. 401, Knights of Columbus, a lecture was delivered last night in the opera house on the subject of "Peace and War." The speaker, David Goldstein of Roxbury, Mass., has gained a national reputation as an opponent of Socialism, and it was an anti-socialistic attitude that Mr. Goldstein adopted during his talk of the evening. The lecturer was introduced by D. J. Sullivan, recording secretary of the K. of C. order in this city.

Mr. Goldstein divided his discussion of peace and war into four headings, speaking of its relationship to the individual, the family, industrial life, and governmental relationships.

The chief criticism of the modern family was the ideas of divorce, which are becoming so liberal. According to Mr. Goldstein, the only antidote for the divorce evil is the universal adoption of the Catholic principle of the sanctity of the marriage vows.

Most of the industrial and governmental unrest to-day is due, according to the speaker, to wrong ideas in the minds of individuals. "Bad will, denying God's law and setting up our own in our domestic and commercial relations," are the fundamental causes of the troubles between labor and capital, employee and employer, which are disturbing the peace of the world to-day.

He explained the seeming inconsistency of the Catholic church in regard to its attitude on the war by saying that while the laws of the church forbid the killing of one man by another, the church so interprets those laws as to allow killing in self-defense and also allow one nation to defend itself and its property against another nation. In regard to the question of the justice of the present war in Europe, the speaker said that the church was silent, regarding that as a question to be answered by the nations themselves, saying: "God will punish those nations that wage unjust war, for the state is morally bound to obey the law of God."

"It is the irony of fate that though the enemy professes to see in the man who gives allegiance to the pope of Rome a traitor to his country, the Catholic church teaches the highest possible order of patriotism. Catholics are to be found amongst the bravest of the brave in all the armies of Christendom," was the speaker's way of disposing of the question of patriotism among people of his faith.

The speaker closed his address with the following words: "We may cry 'Peace! Peace!' but there shall be war until in our hearts we erect the image of Christ, until in our domestic life, in our industrial life and in our governmental affairs, we rule ourselves, our homes, our business, and our nation by the principles of peace."

At the close of Mr. Goldstein's address, several members of the audience took advantage of the speaker's invitation to ask him questions in regard to his statements and ideas as expressed in his discussion. The speaker showed by his ready replies that he was well informed on his subject and appeared ready to consider fairly any question asked, whether it showed sympathy with him or hostility to his views.

A Politician's Recipe for Remembering Acquaintances.

In the February American Magazine a writer says:

"My acquaintance was large, and I was not only embarrassed but annoyed and hurt by my failure to remember much more prominent men."

"One day in a hotel lobby, a member of Congress from my state who had been in Congress ten years spoke to me heartily, and as I shook hands with him I committed the unpardonable error of asking him who he was. He happened to be a man of good sound common sense as well as a good politician, and here is what he said to me after he led me away into a secluded corner:

"Remembering new acquaintances is a habit easily formed. There are fourteen thousand voters in my district, and I can speak to four-fifths of them by their first names. Ordinarily when you are introduced to a man or when you see him at a distance, you hear his name but your mind is on something else. When his name is pronounced to me, I have a firm grip on his hand and am looking at the color of his eyes with my whole power of mind focused on that one combination of name and face. If the thing is done faithfully, there is not one chance in a hundred that anything can blot out the memory in ten years."

A Logical Lunatic.

"Lunatics frequently return amusing answers," says the superintendent of a great insane asylum.

"One day a keeper was out walking with a number of harmless inmates, and the party met a pedestrian not far from the railway tracks. With a nod toward the tracks the traveller asked one of the lunatics:

"Where does this railway go to?"
"The lunatic surveyed him scornfully for a moment and then replied:
"Nowhere. We keep it here to run trains on."—Youth's Companion.
